Dear Messrs. Howard and DeMarinis:

Wes Moore for Maryland, a registered political committee (CCF ID # 01013630) files this complaint regarding violations of Maryland campaign finance laws by an unknown person or persons. Specifically, an unidentified party has repeatedly and anonymously disseminated false and disparaging information regarding Wes Moore via electronic mail and social media in an orchestrated attempt to disparage Mr. Moore and damage his candidacy for Governor. Regrettably, it has become known to Wes Moore for Maryland (the “Moore Campaign”) that a rival campaign may be responsible for this smear campaign. By this complaint, the “Moore Campaign” asks that the Office of the State Prosecutor (“OSP” or the “State Prosecutor”) and the State Board of Elections (“SBE” or the “State Board”) take immediate action to investigate and sanction this unlawful behavior and to ensure full compliance with the law.

On March 24, 2022, a person using the pseudonym “Honest Dem” sent an email and attachments to members of the Board of Directors of the Maryland State Education Association (“MSEA”), though the exact size of the distribution list is not known. (Email and attachments attached hereto as Attachment A). MSEA is the state’s largest professional employee organization, representing over 75,000 Maryland teachers, administrators, and other education professionals. Tellingly, the email was sent days before the association’s members were scheduled to meet on April 2, 2022, to consider endorsing a candidate in the Democratic gubernatorial primary. The documents attempt to mischaracterize Mr. Moore’s position on education issues and seek to paint Mr. Moore as a “fraud” who has dishonestly enriched himself through his life story. Recipients of the email alerted the Moore Campaign and shared its contents. Neither the emails nor the attachments contain an authority line indicating the person or persons responsible for their dissemination.

In addition, a Twitter account called “Honest Maryland Dems” (@HonestMDDems) was established in by an unknown party in November 2021. The account has now been deleted. (Screenshots attached hereto as Attachment B). The account featured the Maryland Democratic Party logo but is not associated with the party. The account does not contain an authority line on its landing page. The account’s first tweet claimed the account is “Here to keep things honest in Maryland Dem Politics. We can’t let what happen [sic] in 2014 and 2018 happen again!” After months of inactivity, on March 14, 2022 the account tweeted, “Excited to start sharing some truths about the Maryland Dem Primaries...We need honest Dems if we are going to win in November!” On March 24, the same day the email was sent to the MSEA board members, the account replied to two tweets from the Moore for Maryland twitter account with additional disparaging and misleading messages. (See, Attachment B). Finally, the Moore Campaign is aware of other attempts to disseminate similar disparaging material to members of the media.

In response to a public information request from the Moore Campaign, the Baltimore City Board of Elections disclosed public records which indicate that a person associated with the John King for Governor campaign (the “King Campaign”) created the opposition research document that was disseminated by the person using the “Honest Dem” pseudonym. (Records request and response attached hereto as Attachment C). The records provided by the Board of Elections indicate that a person named Jacob Horowitz was provided a copy of Mr. Moore’s voting records on August 5, 2021. Per the Board of Elections, the voter file report provided to Mr. Horowitz was generated on August 4, 2021, the same date as the report included in the opposition research document about Mr. Moore. There were no other requests for Mr. Moore’s voting records received by the Baltimore City Board of Elections during this time period. According to public campaign finance reports filed by the King Campaign with the State Board of Elections, a person named Jacob Horowitz was paid $8,729 for his work as a “Senior Research Associate,” between June 1, 2021, and September 16, 2021, the time during which the request was filed.

The knowing and willful violation of the Campaign Finance title is a criminal misdemeanor, subject to a fine not greater than $25,000, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both. MD. CODE ANN Elec. Law § 13-603. Moreover, it is a criminal misdemeanor to attempt to knowingly and willfully influence a voter’s decision to cast a vote through the use of fraud or menace, subject to a fine of not more than $5,000, or imprisonment of not more than five years, or both. Elec. Law §16-201(a)(1)(6) & (b). The State Prosecutor has jurisdiction to investigate and prosecute knowing and willful criminal violations of the Campaign Finance title, and these crimes have been successfully prosecuted in Maryland courts. MD. CODE ANN. Crim. Proc. § 14-107(a)(1)(i). See, Henson v. State, 212 Md.App. 314 (2013) (upholding criminal conviction for conspiracy to intentionally distribute campaign material without an authority line disclosing name of responsible party).

The right of citizens to know who is responsible for political messages is the foundation of campaign finance disclosure laws. Under Maryland law, the email and its attachments and the Twitter account are campaign materials that require an authority line to disclose the name of the political committee or person responsible for their dissemination. MD. CODE ANN. Elec. Law § 13-401(a); Code of Maryland Regulations (COMAR) § 33.13.07.02 A & B. Campaign material is defined as any material that relates to a candidate or a prospective candidate that is published, distributed, or disseminated. Elec. Law § 1-101(k)(1)(ii) & (iii). Campaign material includes any material transmitted by, or appearing on, the internet or other electronic medium. Elec. Law § 1-101(k)(2)(ii). The publication or distribution of campaign material that lacks an authority line is a prohibited act under Maryland law, and failure to include an authority line on campaign material is a civil violation and the State Board has the authority to impose a civil penalty of $500 for each offense. Elec. Law §§ 13-602(a)(9)(i); 13-401.1(b)(7); §13-604.1(d); COMAR § 33.18.01.02 G.

These communications were sent in knowing and willful violation of Maryland campaign finance law. The sender went to great lengths to conceal the true source of the email communication by removing identifying metadata from the attachments and purposefully omitting the required authority lines. In addition, the seriousness and recklessness of the attempted anonymous spread of this misinformation cannot be overstated. As emailed, the documents contain unredacted personal information for Mr. Moore and members of his family, including his mother, who lives alone with his 94-year-old grandmother. While Mr. Moore is a public figure and unfortunately subject to this type of “doxing,” members of his family certainly do not deserve to have their home addresses disseminated electronically throughout the state, subjecting them to identity theft and worse, possibly threatening their physical safety.

Wes Moore for Maryland respectfully requests that the State Prosecutor and the State Board of Elections take all necessary steps to promptly investigate, sanction and shine the light of disclosure on this unlawful behavior.

Sincerely,

Counsel, Wes Moore for Maryland

Subject: [EXT]Wes Moore supports Vouchers and committed Fraud

Hello MSEA Leaders,

I know you have an important decision to make regarding the governors race and I hope for the sake of the democratic party, you won't choose Wes Moore. Not only is Wes an "Ed Reformer" who has supported voucher and school choice programs, but the book many of your teachers are required to teach, "The Other Wes Moore," is an outright lie. Wes has used the story in that book and the book itself to enrich himself, including selling the book to many public schools in Maryland. Wes never lived blocks away from the Other Wes Moore and didn't even live in Baltimore till he did two years at JHU. I hope you will seriously consider the implications of all this and how Republicans will use this to win another general election here in Maryland, since this is where that research came from.

Thanks,
Honest Dem

Summary of Vulnerability

- Moore commended Baltimore City schools' school choice system, saying it allowed students to “vote with their feet’ with dollars following those students to the best-performing schools.”
- Moore celebrated Florida’s Step Up For Students school choice scholarship that gave dollar-for-dollar tax credits to corporations for contributions to scholarship-funding organizations, calling it “bold and innovative.”
- Moore penned an op-ed suggesting closing failing schools was a positive sign, authored with a real estate company founder forced to settle a housing discrimination lawsuit.
  - Moore claimed that closure of Baltimore City schools showed that “civic and private leaders” were “serious about creating great schools” despite the practice disproportionately impacting Black and poor students.
- Moore bragged that Robin Hood was “one of the first organizations” that invested in charter schools to “raise expectations” for students to go on to college or careers.

MOORE CELEBRATED BALTIMORE CITY SCHOOLS' SCHOOL CHOICE SYSTEM, SAYING IT ALLOWED STUDENTS TO "VOTE WITH THEIR FEET' WITH DOLLARS FOLLOWING THOSE STUDENTS TO THE BEST-PERFORMING SCHOOLS"

Moore Commended Baltimore City Schools' Choice System, Saying It Allowed Students To "Vote With Their Feet,' With Dollars Following Those Students To The Best-Performing Schools." "Legislators must be reminded that Baltimore has already taken many hard steps to improve its educational system. A 'choice' system gives middle and high school students the opportunity to 'vote with their feet,' with dollars following those students to the best-performing schools. A union contract sets a national standard for holding teachers and principals accountable for their students' performance. And focused initiatives have increased the high school graduation rate and the number of preschoolers who are 'ready for school.' And schools that fail to meet increasingly rigorous standards are being closed. These steps and more show that our civic and private leaders are serious about creating great schools that will change the trajectory of inner-city youth while attracting the middle class families necessary to any city's success." [Baltimore Sun, Wes Moore, Tom Wilcox and Tom Bozzuto, 2/5/13]

MOORE COMMENDED FLORIDA'S STEP UP FOR STUDENTS SCHOOL CHOICE SCHOLARSHIP THAT GAVE DOLLAR-FOR-DOLLAR TAX CREDITS TO CORPORATIONS FOR CONTRIBUTIONS TO SCHOLARSHIP-FUNDING ORGANIZATIONS, CALLING IT "BOLD AND INNOVATIVE"

Moore Commended Florida's Step Up For Students Scholarship, Saying "I Was So Glad To See So Many Parents Experiencing The Same Choice My Mother Had. It's Programs Like These That Are Bold And Innovative And Provide Opportunities For Low-Income Children." "The visit was in effort to learn about the national School Choice movement and the Florida scholarship program, Step Up For Students; a scholarship which enables low-income families to choose the public or private school that best meets their children's needs. [...] White House Fellow, Westley Moore, was among the Fellows to visit New Jerusalem Christian Academy. Moore grew up in the Bronx and Baltimore and was a scholarship recipient as a child. 'New Jerusalem Christian Academy offered us a chance to see parental choice in action,' Moore, 28, said. 'I was so glad to see so many parents experiencing the same choice my mother had. It's programs like these that are bold and innovative and provide opportunities for low-income children.'" [Miami Times, 2/14/07]

- The Step Up For Students Scholarship Was A Corporate Tax Credit Scholarship Program In Which Corporations Could Receive A Dollar-For-Dollar Tax Credit For Contributions To Scholarship-Funding Organizations. "Florida also offers tax credits to corporations that contribute money to private-school scholarships for students with disabilities and foster children. The Corporate Tax Credit Scholarship Program, also known as 'Step Up for Students,' which began in 2001, allows corporations (including insurance companies) to take a dollar-for-dollar tax credit for contributions to scholarship-funding organizations (up to 100 percent of their state income tax liability).[32] In 2010, tax credits were capped at $140 million for the program.[33] Last year, 32,910 students attended nearly 1,100 different private schools using scholarships funded by the Corporate Tax Credit Scholarship Program.[34] During the 2008-2009 school year, the average scholarship was $3,950.[35] Starting in the 2010-2011 school year, the scholarship was capped at 60 percent of state per-pupil spending, but after that, will increase by 4 percentage points each year the cap is raised until it reaches 80 percent.[36] Prior to 2011, corporations were limited to redirecting up to 75 percent of their tax liabilities towards scholarship granting organizations, but this limit was raised to a full 100 percent in 2011.[37]" [States News Service, 8/17/11]

MOORE BRAGGED THAT ROBIN HOOD WAS "ONE OF THE FIRST ORGANIZATIONS" THAT INVESTED IN CHARTER SCHOOLS TO "RAISE EXPECTATIONS" FOR STUDENTS TO GO ON TO COLLEGE OR CAREERS

Moore: "Robin Hood Was Really One Of The First Organizations That Came In Early And Funded Charter Schools." "But you, know what was interesting was that at Robin Hood, we have a--you know Robin Hood was really one of the first organizations that came in early and funded charter schools. the first organizations that came in early and funded charter schools. So when you look at the growth of things like Kipp, Uncommon Success Academies, Harlem Success, etc how Robin Hood came in early to support charter schools in and alternative education facets.” YouTube, TheBushCenter, [10/20/17] (VIDEO)

Moore Said That Robin Hood’s Investment In Education Was About “How Exactly Can We Raise Expectations For All Students So That You Have Students Who, When They Finish School, They’re Actually Finishing Something That Allows Them To Move On Into Either College Or Careers.” MOORE: “But you, know what was interesting was that at Robin Hood, we have a--you know Robin Hood was really one of the first organizations that came in early and funded charter schools. So when you look at the growth of things like Kipp, Uncommon Success Academies, Harlem Success, etc how Robin Hood came in early to support charter schools in and alternative education facets. But the interesting thing about it is this- it's not about the charter schools in particular. Right? It's about the idea of ‘Are we willing to really test and innovate mechanisms that challenge common conceptions about education, often time, common conceptions that were built and done hundreds of years ago? A hundred years ago?’ So for example, being able to look at not just the use of technology, but also how exactly can we raise expectations for all students so that you have students who, when they're finishing school, they're actually finishing something that allows them to move on into either college or careers.” YouTube, TheBushCenter, [10/20/17]

- Moore: “Do People Feel That The Training They’re Getting And The Education That They’re Getting Is Actually Going To Prepare Them For The Next 50 And 60 Years Of Their Life?” MOORE: “And then how exactly are we thinking about the combination in the collaboration and the conversation between the workforce and the education side. One thing that we're seeing is: the workforce needs are changing rapidly. The things that our employers now need are completely different than our employers needed 10 and 15 years ago, which is completely different employers needed 30 years ago. Do we now have an educational system that can both keep up with that and then also prepare students for that? When secretary rice was talking about the retraining of people when they're 35, and we're talking about things like trade agreements, I would argue -- do we need to have a conversation about trade agreements? Yes and that's fine. But the bigger conversation needs to happen, what about the ten years before the trade agreements are signed? And are we preparing our workforce for what's going to happen as the workforce continues to change? So when we're talking about this idea of disillusionment, a huge part of addressing the disillusionment is: Do people feel that the training they're getting and the education that they're getting is actually going to prepare them for the next 50 and 60 years of their life? And that's where being able to be critical and think critically about our educational processes does matter.” YouTube, TheBushCenter, [10/20/17]

Wes Moore Research Update: Fraudulent Story and Falsified Book

Summary of Vulnerability

- Wes Moore has built a brand and a career around his best-selling book, The Other Wes Moore.
- The premises of this book was a description of how Wes Moore, now Democratic candidate for Governor and the other Wes Moore grew up in similar Baltimore neighborhoods under similar circumstances. Even though they had the same circumstances Wes went on to be a successful Rhodes Scholar and the other Wes Moore went to prison.
- Wes has used this book and its success to not only enrich himself from the sales (including sales to Baltimore Public Schools) but to secure media appearances, paid speaking jobs, venture capital funding, and a job as CEO of the Robin Hood Foundation.
- The book and Wes's story however are factually not true and completely fraudulent.
- Wes did not live in Baltimore until the 2 years he attended John's Hopkins University and did not fully live in Baltimore till 2006 at the earliest.
- His mother was a successful TV producer, writer, journalist, and public relations professional that was able to afford sending multiple children to private school.
- Wes has used this fraudulent story to personally enrich himself.

SUMMARY OF FACTS

For Just Over a Decade, One of the Top Candidates for Governor Of Maryland, Wes Moore Has Claimed, Including In His Bestselling Book, "The Other Wes Moore," That He Was Born And Raised In Baltimore City...

- For decades, Wes Moore has claimed and implied that he was born and raised in Baltimore City.
- In his bestselling 2010 book titled, "The Other Wes Moore," Moore repeatedly claimed and implied that he lived in Baltimore City as a child.

Records Show However, This Is a Lie. Moore Was Born In DC Then Lived In Takoma Park, Maryland, then New York City, Then his Mother Moved to Pasadena Maryland in Anne Arundel County. He Did Not Live In Baltimore City Until His Two Years Attending Johns Hopkins University. He Continued to Claim his Mother's Home in Anne Arundel County as His Residence.

- 1978-84: Moore was born in DC and spent his early years in Takoma Park, Maryland with his family.
- 1984-1995: Moore lived in the Bronx, New York with his mother and grandparents.
- 1994 or 1995: Moore's mother moved to Pasadena, Maryland while he was attending military boarding school at Valley Forge Military Academy in Pennsylvania.
- 2000-2001: Moore lived in Baltimore City while attending Johns Hopkins University but voted in Anne Arundel County and was called an "Anne Arundel County Resident" by the Baltimore Sun.
- 2004: Moore filed articles of incorporation for business listing corporation address in Pasadena, Maryland.
- 2008: Moore applied for a Maryland absentee ballot and listed a New York address.
- 2012: Finally claims Baltimore as his residence with Dept of Motor Vehicles

Moore Purchased Property In Baltimore City As An Adult, But Continued To Use His Mother's Pasadena Address On Official Forms, Worked Outside Of Maryland, And Even Incorrectly Claimed A Homestead Exemption

- Moore moved to Baltimore City in 2006 and has owned property there since.
- Even while living in Baltimore City, Moore voted in Anne Arundel County and was cited as living in Pasadena, Maryland by a White House Press Release.
- 2012: Moore changed his address with the Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration to Baltimore City from Pasadena.
- Moore spent well over a decade working outside of Maryland.
- Moore even incorrectly claimed a homestead exemption for four years on his Baltimore property, getting $1,700 discounted off his yearly tax bills and resulting in back taxes owed.

Moore's Descriptions Of His Childhood And His Mother's Circumstances Had Discrepancies And He Exaggerated How Closely His Life Paralleled The Other Wes Moore

- Moore spoke of his mother struggling to avoid tuition for expensive private schools for him and his sisters, repeatedly mentioning how she worked multiple jobs to pay for everything.
- Moore claimed or heavily implied he grew up in lower-income circumstances.
- Moore claimed he and the other Wes Moore grew up in similar circumstances and had "startling parallels."
- ...But Moore's mother was an award-winning television producer and writer and had also spent time as an adjunct professor at Howard University.
- ...And the other Wes Moore grew up in "rough" West Baltimore, was a "career criminal" who became involved with drugs at 11 or 12 and ended up in prison after participating in an armed robbery.

Key Supporting Documents – Claims of Being From Baltimore (Sampling)

2006-2007: Moore’s White House Fellows Bio Claimed Baltimore, MD Was His Hometown. “Westley Watende Moore, 27. Hometown: Baltimore, MD.” George W. Bush White House, White House Fellows Class of 2006-2007, accessed [Link]

2010: Moore Said One Of The Other Titles He “Tried Out” For “The Other Wes Moore” Was “Baltimore Sons.” “‘The Other Wes Moore’ is a book that bridges the gap between Inner Harbor and inner city in the most startling and revelatory ways. The title might suggest the tale of a hidden life. But it’s something completely different: the story of two Baltimore men with the same name, roughly similar backgrounds — and wholly opposite journeys. Instead of stoking the ‘good’ Moore with a sense of pride and accomplishment, the contrast bedeviled and haunted him. Seeing reports of the crime juxtaposed in The Baltimore Sun with profiles of himself as the ultimate ‘local boy makes good’ roused a driving curiosity. It kept getting fired up as the coverage of both men continued in 2000 and 2001. ‘One of the titles I tried out for this book was ‘Baltimore Sons,’ he says.” Baltimore Sun, [4/30/10]

(EXCERPTS FROM THE BOOK - Sample)

Moore Wrote In “The Other Wes Moore”: “This Is The Story Of Two Boys Living In Baltimore With Similar Histories And An Identical Name: Wes Moore.” “This is the story of two boys living in Baltimore with similar histories and an identical name: Wes Moore. One of us is free and has experienced things that he never even knew to dream about as a kid. The other will spend every day until his death behind bars for an armed robbery that left a police officer and father of five dead. The chilling truth is that his story could have been mine. The tragedy is that my story could have been his. Our stories are obviously specific to our two lives, but I hope they will illuminate the crucial inflection points in every life, the sudden moments of decision where our paths diverge and our fates are sealed. It’s unsettling to know how little separates each of us from another life altogether.” [Wes Moore, The Other Wes Moore, Introduction, 4/27/10]

Moore Said That He “Returned To Baltimore” When He Began Attending Johns Hopkins University. “I had returned to Baltimore two years earlier, after I’d been accepted at Johns Hopkins University to complete my undergraduate degree, which I’d begun in junior college at Valley Forge. One afternoon at Valley Forge I was talking to my college adviser about what to do after I received my associate’s degree. My adviser told me that she knew the assistant director of admissions at Johns Hopkins, who she wanted me to meet. My mother had been working in Baltimore for the past five years, and I considered Baltimore home, so I knew about Johns Hopkins. I just didn’t know anyone who went there. My perception of Hopkins was as a distant force in the neighborhood, a research university responsible for some of the greatest medical gifts the world has ever received, but that had very little to do with the life of the city I knew. Hopkins was also full of kids who did not look or sound like me.” [Wes Moore, The Other Wes Moore, Ch. 8, 4/27/10]

Moore Said That Attending Johns Hopkins University Was “A Chance To Go Home.” “A week later, I sat across the table from Paul White, the assistant director of admissions at Johns Hopkins. I was expecting a stodgy, older gentleman who’d offer me canned encomiums about Hopkins and then stiffen and ask for the check when he found out the details of my standardized test scores. What I found was a black man with a warm disposition and a booming voice, who bristled with energy and was constantly in motion, his hands swooping like birds in flight to accentuate his points. I spent much of the lunch telling him my story, and he spent the remaining time selling me on Hopkins. By the end of our meal, I realized that Hopkins represented much more than a chance to attend a great school with a phenomenal reputation. It was also a chance to go home.” [Wes Moore, The Other Wes Moore, Ch. 8, 4/27/10]

Moore Said That People Taught Him That “No Accident Of Birth” Such As “Being From Baltimore” Would Define Or Limit Him. “When we’re young, it sometimes seems as if the world doesn’t exist outside our city, our block, our house, our room. We make decisions based on what we see in that limited world and follow the only models available. The most important thing that happened to me was not being physically transported — the moves from Baltimore to the Bronx to Valley Forge didn’t change my way of thinking. What changed was that I found myself surrounded by people — starting with my mom, grandparents, uncles, and aunts, and leading to a string of wonderful role models and mentors — who kept pushing me to see more than what was directly in front of me, to see the boundless possibilities of the wider world and the unexplored possibilities within myself. People who taught me that no accident of birth — not being black or relatively poor, being from Baltimore or the Bronx or fatherless — would ever define or limit me. In other words, they helped me to discover what it means to be free. As I wrote at the outset of this book: The chilling truth is that Wes’s story could have been mine; the tragedy is that my story could have been his. My only wish — and I know Wes feels the same — is that the boys (and girls) who come after us will know this freedom. It’s up to us, all of us, to make a way for them.” [Wes Moore, The Other Wes Moore, Epilogue, 4/27/10]

In The Reader’s Guide Of “The Other Wes Moore,” One Question Reads “During Their Youth, Wes And Wes Spend Most Of Their Time In Crime-Ridden Baltimore And The Bronx. How Important Was That Environment In Shaping Their Stories And Personalities?” In the reader’s guide of the 2010 Penguin Random House Edition of “The Other Wes Moore,” the second prompt in the “Reader’s Guide” at the end of the book reads “During their youth, Wes and Wes spend most of their time in crime-ridden Baltimore and the Bronx. How important was that environment in shaping their stories and personalities?” [Wes Moore, The Other Wes Moore, Reader’s Guide, 4/27/10]

Two communities that continually have not just been chronically neglected, but the worst part about it is that we’ve known it. We’ve lived in the communities and communities where we know that we’re not at the front of the conversation. That not just has a structural impact on us, it has a psychological impact on us. Empowered by a remarkable Board and clear-set mission, vision and values – I see tremendous opportunity to continue harnessing the power of sport to strengthen the athletes and communities we serve globally.’” Under Armour, Newsroom, [9/2020]

And Elijah made a difference in quite a few areas. But still, Baltimore is hurting, the state of Maryland is hurting. What can you do differently?” MOORE: “It’s a great question, Joe. And Elijah was a mentor of mine, a dear mentor. And I know this was something that pained him so deeply – about how can we continue to build up a place that is not just my hometown, but you can’t understand my story without understanding Baltimore.” YouTube, MSNBC, 2:30-3:15, [6/8/21] (VIDEO)

Education helped open me up to a world of opportunity. Maryland has some of the nation's best public schools, but also some of its most neglected. We can't settle for that. We must ensure that every Maryland student gets that fair shot to succeed. #MooreForMaryland
