

Before China Joe, There Was Kissinger

By Cliff Kincaid* © Copyright. America's Survival, Inc. (ASI)

How can Republicans impeach “China Joe” Biden for taking money from China, Russia, and other countries when “Republican” Henry Kissinger got the money flowing in the first place?

Years before Kissinger's passing, I wrote a column examining the evidence developed by conservative journalist Gary Allen in the 1970s that Henry Kissinger's “Red China Gambit” was designed to abandon the free people of the Republic of China on Taiwan to the Communist Chinese. The island, with a population of 23 million, is still a strategic U.S. ally in the region but is facing a communist invasion.

Yet the architect of this policy is now being celebrated in his death.

Republicans tend to defend Kissinger because he worked for a Republican President, anti-communist Richard Nixon, but Democrats defend him because he implemented the policies of the Democratic Party, such as when he proclaimed on CNBC the advent of a “New World Order” after the election as president of Democrat Barack Hussein Obama and his Vice President Joseph Biden. Biden now hails Kissinger's “fierce intellect” and “profound strategic focus,” while insisting he had “often disagreed” with him.

Yet Biden and Kissinger share the same appeasement policies and both supported a “New World Order.” America's enemies and adversaries are on the march, and they admit it was because of Henry Kissinger. They are marching forward under Biden.

Kissinger's website includes various tributes but the most important include the quote, “Dr. Kissinger will always be remembered and missed by the Chinese people,” from China's President Xi Jinping. Russian President Putin released a statement calling him an “outstanding diplomat” and “far-sighted statesman.”

Trump, after becoming president, also met with Kissinger. But it was a courtesy visit, clearly not designed to continue Kissinger's pro-China policies.

Trump pursued a strategy of "decoupling" from China and freezing the regime out of the world economic system. The strategy was like President Reagan's economic warfare approach to the Soviet Union, taking advantage of the failure of the Soviet economy to keep up with the capitalist nations of the West.

But with such deference paid to a top U.S. official, we must examine Kissinger's record.

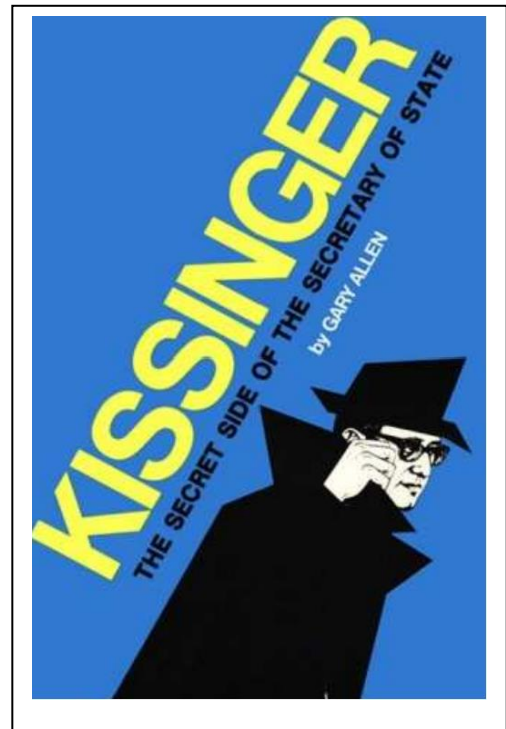

Kissinger's "China Opening" to the greatest mass murderer in history, Mao, was comparable to Neville Chamberlain's "Peace in Our Time" overture to Hitler.

Allen's book, Kissinger: The Secret Side of the Secretary of State, was published in 1976 and explored at some length charges that Kissinger was "Moscow's Man in Washington," based on the revelations of Colonel General Michael Goleniewski, a Polish Army intelligence officer in World War II and "one of the most important defectors from the Communist intelligence apparatus ever to reach our shores." He said Kissinger was recruited when he was a U.S. Army intelligence officer in World War II, years before he became "an unknown professor at Harvard..."

The charges were "buried deep in the bowels of the government's security agencies," Allen reported.

Another conservative journalist, Frank Capell, was also on the story, having written the book, Henry Kissinger - Soviet Agent. CIA files include an article by Capell about these charges. Kissinger denied the charges at the time, but Allen reported that State Department Security Officer John Norpel Jr. had testified before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee that none of the information Goleniewski had supplied during a three-year debriefing was found to be untrue or inaccurate.

Whatever the ultimate truth about the charges of being a secret agent of influence, Kissinger's betrayal of Free China is a matter of the historical record. This is comparable to Neville Chamberlain's "opening" to Nazi Germany. As noted by Bertil Haggman, director of the Center for Research on Geopolitics in Sweden, the Communist Party of China (CCP) is a criminal political party that is probably responsible for killing between 80 and 100 million people, the highest number of political killings in modern time by one party-state perpetrator.

As such, the "opening" to China has legitimized a genocidal Nazi-like regime.

There are many accounts of the betrayal of Free China, but Bill Gertz's book The China Threat explained how Kissinger "played the key role" in the talks that led President Nixon in 1972 to establish informal ties with China that ultimately led to formal diplomatic relations in 1979 and the abandonment of Taiwan. Kissinger traveled secretly to meet with communist leaders to arrange the betrayal.

Kissinger's power play was based on the false hope that China would abandon communism. This lie has gotten the United States and the world into the current dangerous situation.

On the Fox Business channel hosted by Larry Kudlow, former Trump national security adviser Robert O'Brien said the "opening" to China was "controversial" but "a major accomplishment for him," as well as "peace in Vietnam."

Nikita Khrushchev of Russia, Mao Zedong of China, and Ho Chi Minh of Vietnam are pictured. Kissinger's "China Opening" consigned Free China on Taiwan to communist enslavement. His "Peace Accords" turned Vietnam over to the communists.

Kissinger did receive the Nobel Peace Prize in 1973 for his work on the so-called Vietnam Peace Accords. But they ultimately resulted in a communist takeover of Vietnam, hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese political prisoners and boat people fleeing communism, and the Pol Pot communist Khmer Rouge genocide in neighboring Cambodia, killing two million.

That work on "peace in Vietnam" included a meeting between Kissinger and Wilfred Burchett, the Australian communist welcomed to Washington by Kissinger himself in 1971 for "consultations" on the Vietnam War. Burchett confirmed a "secret breakfast meeting” with Kissinger in the White House and a private lunch with Averell Harriman, then head of the U.S. negotiating team on the Vietnam accords.

Accuracy in Media chairman Reed Irvine noted Buchett’s KGB connections in a letter to the New York Times. KGB defector Yuri Krotkov had testified that he knew Burchett well in Moscow and tried to help him in his attempt to get on the KGB payroll and that Burchett had worked for the Chinese and North Vietnamese Governments.

The only accurate statement on the Fox Business Kudlow show was O’Brien’s comment that Kissinger played a role in “saving Israel” from defeat during the 1973 Arab-Israeli War, when President Nixon authorized resupplying Israel with arms. Kissinger carried out Nixon’s pro-Israel policy.

Nixon was always considered a tough anti-communist who made many liberal enemies because he produced (with the help of ex-communist Whittaker Chambers) the evidence proving that State Department official Alger Hiss was a Soviet spy. One of the leading lights of the Council on Foreign Relations, Hiss co-founded the United Nations and worked at the side of President Franklin Roosevelt, helping to arrange Soviet control of Eastern Europe, after Stalin stole America’s nuclear secrets by using American traitors in the atom bomb project such as J. Robert Oppenheimer.

However, Gary Allen reported that Nixon hired Kissinger and “waived the normal security check” on him. For Nixon at the time, hiring Kissinger was a way to mollify the Rockefeller wing of the Republican Party. Kissinger had worked for Nelson Rockefeller, who became vice-president when Nixon was forced to resign the presidency and Gerald Ford became president. Kissinger remained as Secretary of State. For his part, Nelson Rockefeller ran for president in 1960, 1964, and 1968, losing to Nixon in 1968.

Nixon had defended the decision of the Truman administration to enter the fighting in the Korean War, saying, “...the communists had to be stopped.” However, the Communist Chinese intervened massively on the side of the North Korean regime. American casualties of the United States during the Korean War (1950-1953) have been estimated at 54,260 dead including 33,643 “battle deaths.” The U.S. settled on a stalemate in Korea, after American General Douglas MacArthur was prohibited from taking the fight to the communist-controlled Chinese mainland. He was fired by President Harry Truman, a Democrat who decided on a policy of containment of, rather than victory over, communism.

Vietnam would be free today except for Kissinger's phony "peace" accords and a Democratic-controlled Congress. Lewis Fanning's excellent book Betrayal in Vietnam, notes that "it was not the Hanoi communists who won the war, but rather the American Congress that lost it." Fanning writes, "It was not until after the United States elections in the fall of 1974 that North Vietnamese field commanders received the go-ahead in their plans to conquer South Vietnam."

Fanning continued, "As a result of the Watergate scandals, the Democrats had gained forty-three seats in the House that year. This liberal victory meant that in the 94th Congress, there would be 291 Democrats and only 144 Republicans. In the Senate, the Democrats gained three seats and the lineup was now 61

Democrats to 39 Republicans. This leftward shift of both congressional chambers played a significant role in the North Vietnamese decision to unleash its army."

Going through the provisions of various bills, Fanning presents the case that "A Democratic caucus of the Congress of the United States, aided and abetted by a few liberal Republicans, cast the South Vietnamese people into Communist slavery." That left-wing caucus, Members of Congress for Peace through Law reduced aid to the government of South Vietnam, forcing the collapse.

The failed U.S. military effort to keep South Vietnam free from international communism backed by Red China and the Soviet Union resulted in 58,000 Americans sacrificing and dying in vain, although President Reagan hailed their "noble cause."

As we look deeper into the Watergate affair that brought down Nixon, we must conclude that Nixon was singled out for destruction because of his role in helping to expose Soviet spy Alger Hiss in the State Department, a prominent member of a communist network inside the U.S. government.

Author John O'Conner's book, Postgate, looks at the roles played by a former top FBI official and the CIA in the scandal that brought down Nixon. Interestingly, Washington Post Watergate reporter Carl Bernstein's parents were members of the Communist Party. His father had been questioned about a possible relationship with Louise Bransten, a member of a Soviet espionage network.

Ironically, Nixon had persuaded anti-communist Senator Joe McCarthy to avoid investigating communist penetration of the CIA, one of the agencies reportedly informed about Kissinger's identification as a Soviet agent. McCarthy would go into Bethesda Naval Hospital with a sore knee and leave in a body bag, allegedly dead of hepatitis, before he could ever launch that inquiry.

As Vietnam fell to the communists, the Members of Congress for Peace through Law eventually grew to become the Congressional Progressive Caucus, the largest group of congressional members within the Democratic Party.

Kissinger understood the influence of the "progressives," since he had wiretapped one of his own aides, Morton Halperin, a radical left-wing activist who sued him over the surveillance and became an official of the Clinton Administration and an advisor to the George Soros-funded Open Society Foundations.

Kissinger is savagely criticized by the communists for carrying out Nixon's orders to destabilize the Communist Salvador Allende regime in Chile. It's a "full time job -- best men we have,"

Nixon had said, arguing for a sustained effort to stop communism in Chile. "Make the economy scream." Kissinger and the CIA didn't have to work too hard. The people didn't want communism and turned out in the streets to protest. The military responded with a coup against Allende and General

President Nixon, seen with Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, hired Kissinger to mollify the Rockefeller wing of the Republican Party. It was a big mistake.

Augusto Pinochet took power. Faced with a popular rebellion against his communist policies, Allende shot himself with an AK-47 assault rifle given to him by Castro.

Pinochet led a revolution in Chile that by communist standards was virtually bloodless. Some 3,000 people were killed by the military when they overthrew Salvador Allende. Pinochet stepped down from power voluntarily and preserved freedom in Chile.

But many Republicans have still failed to come to grips with Kissinger's true legacy of assisting the advance of international communism. Former Trump adviser O'Brien was involved in giving Kissinger an "Architect of Peace" award in 2022.

However, Isaac Stone Fish, founder and CEO of consulting firm Strategy Risks, wrote the book, America Second: How America's Elites Are Making China Stronger, and calls Kissinger an "agent of Chinese influence." He declares that, "for the last forty years of his life, [Kissinger was] a businessman masquerading as a diplomat." After leaving the government, Kissinger had established a firm, Kissinger Associates, Inc., which did business in Russia and China on behalf of secret corporate clients. In 2002, as he was facing questions about potential conflicts of interest, Kissinger resigned as chairman of the September 11th commission investigating the Muslim terrorist attacks on America.

But his potential "conflicts of interest" involving China and Russia were never seriously investigated. The Committee of 100, described by author and analyst Trevor Loudon as one of the Chinese Communist Party's most important "influence" organizations in the United States, was started by Kissinger. On October 24, 2023, the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations honored Henry Kissinger at its Gala Dinner.

The idea that the Red Chinese were potential allies against the Soviets was sold by Kissinger and adopted by U.S. intelligence agencies. It was carried forward during the Clinton, Bush, and Obama Administrations and resulted in decades of cooperation with China, even in the so-called medical research that produced the COVID virus and killed more than one million Americans. U.S.-China "cooperation" in nuclear research resulted in what the 1999 Cox Report had declared was China's theft of "design information on the most advanced U.S. nuclear weapons, including every currently deployed thermonuclear warhead in the U.S. ballistic missile arsenal."

Using Marxist dialectics, the Communists played the West like fools.

Richard Haas of the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) still maintains that "the opening to China" was "an opportunity created by the Sino-Soviet split, but discerned and then exploited by Kissinger..." The "Sino-Soviet split" became "common wisdom" in the foreign policy establishment because of Kissinger's influence.

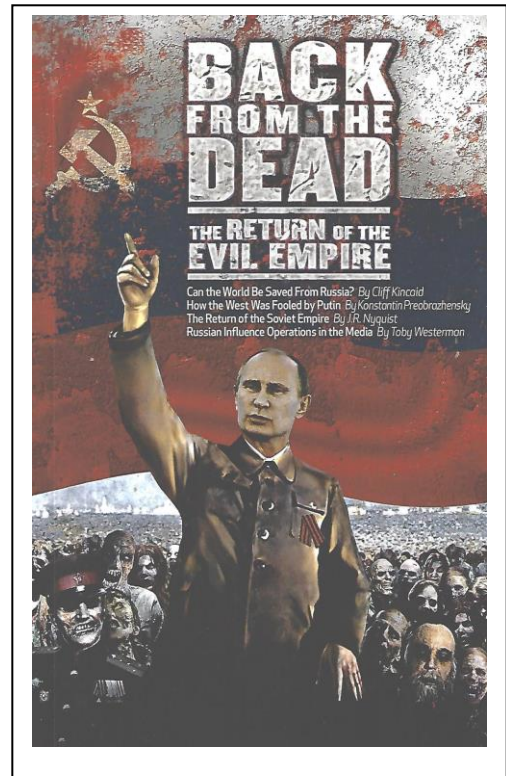

But President Reagan never fell for the Sino-Soviet split ruse. Running for president in 1980, Ronald Reagan was asked for his opinion on the so-called Sino-Soviet split. "They were allies and the only argument that caused their split was an argument over how best to destroy us," he said of China and the Soviet Union. Reagan understood Marxist dialectics, a way of writing and talking that confuses non-communists but always works out to the benefit of the communists. In fact, the Sino-Soviet split was nothing more than a polemical argument. In fact, a 1965 communist Chinese publication, "The Polemic on the General Line of the International Communist Movement," is based on the perceived "differences" between the Chinese and Soviet Communist parties. These differences were real in the mind of a communist, since they always preach and practice ideological "struggle," but irrelevant in terms of their eventual goal. This is why former Soviet president Mikhail Gorbachev, during glasnost and perestroika, would openly declare his goal to be the ultimate triumph of world communism.

Our 2015 book, The Sword of Revolution and the Communist Apocalypse, features an interview with a former U.S. intelligence agency official who explained how the Sino-Soviet split deceived U.S. policymakers and weakened the Free World. His perspective was a dissenting view in the CIA and intelligence community bureaucracy.

Despite claims of a Sino-Soviet split, the evidence shows that the Chinese Communist Party was in fact founded by a Bolshevik Soviet agent, Grigori Naumovich Voitinsky, a Russian born in Belarus in 1893. China and Russia signed a joint statement on "the foundation for bilateral ties" in 1992, established a "partnership of strategic coordination" in 1996, and then signed the Treaty of Good-Neighborliness and Friendly Cooperation in 2001. In February 2013, China and Russia signed a joint statement to "deepen their comprehensive strategic partnership of coordination." Just weeks before Russia's invasion of Ukraine in February 2022, they declared a "no limits" partnership.

By any objective measure, the China virus can be viewed in part as revenge for President Trump's tariffs on Chinese goods. China was the only major country to report economic growth in the "pandemic-ravaged year" of 2020.

Anti-communist author and filmmaker Robert Orlando has noted that, because of unleashing this virus on the world, "China is now positioned geopolitically the way the U.S. was in the post-World War II era of 1945...China is now the emerging hegemony." He commented, "One leak of the virus has set us back almost 10 trillion dollars," in addition to the more than one million dead Americans from COVID and historic setbacks in math scores for 15-year-old American students since COVID.

The China virus also served to justify mail-in voting schemes in Democratic Party-controlled swing states that were susceptible to fraud. Trump's call to Americans to march on Washington D.C. on January 6, 2021 peacefully and patriotically to protest election fraud has led to efforts by the Biden Justice Department, including United Nations-trained lawyer Jack Smith, to try to imprison Trump before the 2024 election.

Comparable to the "thinking" that led to the "opening" to China, many still do not understand that Russia was the first communist nation on earth and remains so to this day. Russia uses the same tactics and strategy of Soviet Russia. Our book, Back from the Dead: The Return of the Evil Empire, examines this strategy.

However, Kissinger wrote the foreword to the 2002 book The New Russian Diplomacy, by Russian official Igor S. Ivanov, in which Kissinger discussed how Russia and the U.S. “have a rare opportunity to work together in building a new international system.” Kissinger and former Russian Prime Minister Yevgeny Primakov chaired a working group on U.S.-Russian relations in 2007. The following year, Russia invaded Georgia, a former Soviet republic. Even after the invasion of Ukraine in 2014, Kissinger remained in Putin's camp, telling Fareed Zakaria on CNN that “one has to understand that for Russia, Ukraine can never be just another country. It is believed that Ukraine is an integral part of the Russian patrimony.” In other words, under Russia's control.

Yet, Ukraine's sovereignty and territorial integrity had been guaranteed by Moscow and Washington in the 1994 Budapest Memorandum arranged by President Clinton.

Under Biden, Ukraine is being pressured to negotiate and certify Russia's capture of eastern Ukraine and Crimea. That means Russia wins, and it can set its sights on other countries, such as anti-communist Poland. Meanwhile, America is fast becoming a colony of China, in the same way that Jean Robin documents what happened to his country in the book, France, a Colony of communist China.

Kissinger made headlines on January 5, 2009, after the election of Barack Hussein Obama as president, when he appeared on CNBC to celebrate 30 years of official diplomatic relations between the U.S. and Communist China and proclaim Obama to be the architect of a New World Order. But just as significant as this eye-opening statement was that Kissinger made these comments on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange. Kissinger was alongside Stephen Orlins, president of the U.S. National Committee on U.S.-China Relations, and two Chinese officials, as Orlins rang the market bell.

Before the China virus was released but after the election of Trump in 2016, the official Chinese news agency article revealed that Chinese President Xi met with Barack Hussein Obama in Beijing in a closed-door private meeting. The British Guardian said that Chinese media “fawned” over Obama and Xi, dubbing the pair “veteran cadres,” a term usually applied to retired Communist officials.

As a result of COVID and mail-in voting schemes that President Trump warned about, we got the presidency of China Joe Biden, whose influence peddling with his son Hunter mimics that of Kissinger. "We do not seek to decouple our economy from China's," says Biden Secretary of the Treasury Janet Yellen, confirming China's influence.

Under assault by Democrats using KGB disinformation for being a Russian agent, Trump did more for Ukraine than Obama/Biden ever did. He gave them anti-tank weapons and sanctioned Germany's Nord Stream 2 gas pipeline from Russia. By contrast, one of Biden's first actions in office was to reverse the Trump approach and approve that Russian pipeline to Germany, confirming Russia's influence as well.

Trump was always a special target of the communists because he had derailed Barack Hussein's Obama's "Permanent Revolution," which was supposed to go forward under "President" Hillary Clinton. He is viewed by the communists as a frightening candidate who can stop the Democratic Party from consolidating a one-party dictatorship, restrain the growth of Communist Chinese economic and military power, and facilitate NATO's self-defense efforts in Europe. The Biden Justice Department wants to jail him, using U.N.-trained lawyer Jack Smith in this effort.

In terms of the Russia hoax, we learned from a June 19, 2018, Congressional oversight investigation into the matter and its related hearing that emails between FBI officials revealed that "POTUS wants to know everything we're doing" and "the White House is running this." POTUS is Obama.

But where was the investigation of Obama?

Before he was assigned to "get Trump," Special Counsel Jack Smith conducted investigations and supervised "war crime prosecutions" at the International Criminal Court (ICC) in The Hague, Netherlands. But the United States never ratified the ICC treaty. On what basis, therefore, did he work on that global tribunal?

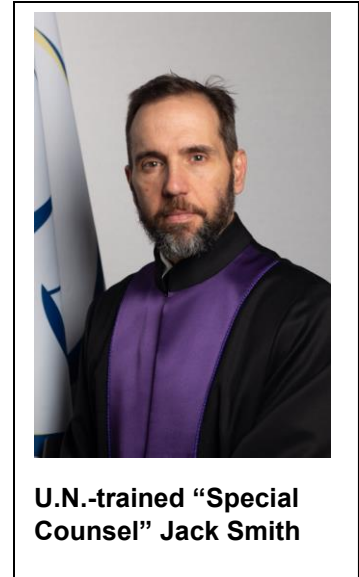

Russian dictator Vladimir Putin, a former KGB operative who wages war on the former Soviet republics and murders his political enemies, calls Kissinger an "old friend."

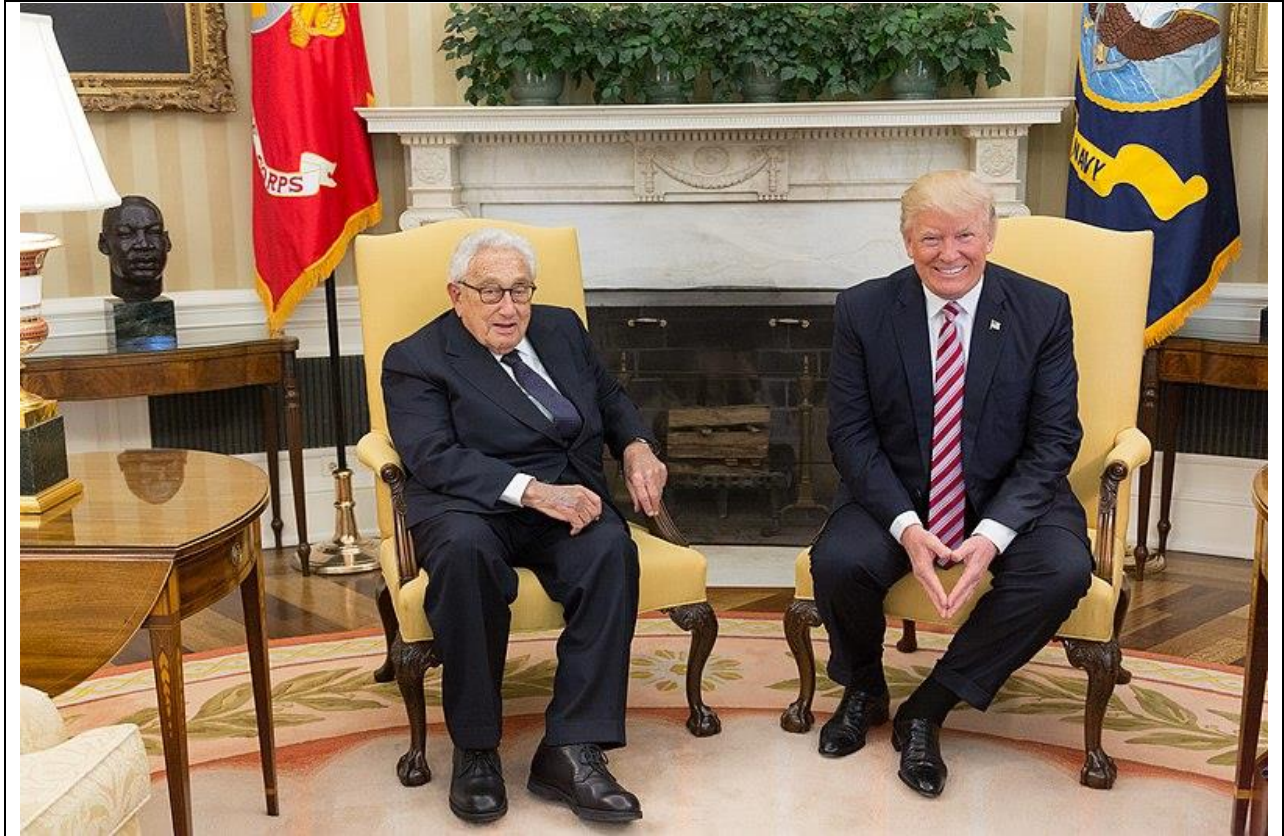

He began his career under Barack Hussein Obama's Attorney General Eric Holder, leading the Department of Justice "Public Integrity Section."

Smith has been photographed in his global garb, wearing black and purple robes, contemplating crimes such as genocide, war crimes, and crimes against humanity. This is where power really went to his head, as evident in the prosecutions he is now bringing against former President Trump.

One charge, if we are to believe the media, is that Trump mishandled some documents in his possession dealing with nuclear issues. He was entitled to those under the Presidential Records Act. Yet the Biden Administration revealed one of the nation's most highly classified secrets -- the number of nuclear weapons in the U.S. stockpile. Such a disclosure works only to the benefit of America's enemies, such as China and Russia, who keep their nuclear information a state secret.

Faced with the "lawfare" antics of this lawyer from a global kangaroo court, Trump's lawyers have no choice but to put Smith on trial for violating the U.S. Constitution. And the Congress has no alternative but to defund Smith's illegitimate and illegal quest to put the former president in prison.

Trump, after becoming president, met with Kissinger, an advocate of a “New World Order.” But it was a courtesy visit, clearly not designed to continue Kissinger’s pro-China policies. Trump pursued a strategy of “decoupling” from China and freezing the regime out of the world economic system. The White House document, “TRUMP ON CHINA. PUTTING AMERICA FIRST,” declared, “through the ‘Made in China 2025’ plan, the Communist Party has set its sights on controlling 90 percent of the world’s most advanced industries, including robotics, biotechnology, and artificial intelligence. To win the commanding heights of the 21st century economy, Beijing has directed its bureaucrats and businesses to obtain American intellectual property—the foundation of our economic leadership -- by any means necessary.”
