

Maryland State Senate President Supports Legal Dope

Maryland Mall Shooter Darion Marcus Aguilar, who shot and killed two people and himself at a clothing store at the shopping mall in Columbia, Maryland, was a Pothead

Howard County Police @HCPDNews Jan 29
Aguilar indicates he thought he needed a mental health professional, but never told his family. He also mentions using marijuana.

<https://twitter.com/HCPDNews>

Long-serving Maryland Senate president says he supports legalization of marijuana

(AP) - Darion Marcus Aguilar.

Howard County Police  Follow
@HCPDNews

In his writings, Aguilar expresses apology to his family for what he is Why the Mall in Columbia, and the Zumiez store in particular? Why 25-year-old Tyler Johnson and 21-year-old Brianna Benlolo — Aguilar’s victims who, at least so far, appear to have no concrete connections to the young man? Howard County police say those are questions they are still probing.

“Nothing in the journal indicates why he targeted these two people or the mall in general,” Howard County police spokeswoman Sherry Llewellyn said in an e-mail.

What Aguilar’s writings — which police say came in the year leading up to the shooting — show is a teenager who was discontented, violent and self-aware. Howard County police said on Twitter that Aguilar wrote of using marijuana, expressed “thoughts of wanting to die” and even said he was “ready to die.”

http://www.washingtonpost.com/local/crime/2014/01/29/a936f5ca-8932-11e3-a5bd-844629433ba3_story.html

See our background article: Liberalism, Mental Disorders and the Maryland Mall Shooter