

The President Trump Shooting Incident

Fred Gielow. 7-26-24.

If the US government was involved, somehow, with the shooting of President Trump, as some conspiracy enthusiasts seem to believe, then how did government people make contact with Thomas Matthew Crooks in the first place? Someone had to approach Crooks, determine his willingness, and sign him up to be the shooter. But it seems totally implausible such a scenario would or could take place. It just doesn't make sense.

But then this morning in the shower, a couple of thoughts bounced about in my head. I had heard a media report stating that Thomas Matthew and his father were members of a shooting club, and they enjoyed spending time at the shooting range.

I had also heard another media report stating that "coincidentally," some Secret Service people had used the same club for shooting practice. Coincidentally?

What if Secret Service people were searching for someone to shoot Trump. What if they used the club as a means to find a willing shooter. Perhaps there were Secret Service people at other shooting ranges as well, looking for a potential shooter.

How hard would it be to engage in a little friendly conversation. "Hey, you really shoot well. Nice going." Then, maybe after a beer or two, "So, what do you think of Donald Trump?"

This could have played out dozens of times before a shooter could be found who met all the qualifications.

The plan could be presented to the shooter like this:

Look, you can set up one or two accounts in Europe. We'll deposit five million dollars in the accounts if you're successful. We'll guarantee that the FBI, Secret Service, and other law enforcement agencies will not bother you on the day of the shooting. We can take care of that. You don't have to worry. And after you kill President Trump, we'll guarantee you won't be harmed and you can escape unscathed. If you carefully scout out the area beforehand, you'll be able to easily get off a kill shot. We've seen you shoot. We know you can do this.

Is this pure conjecture? Absolutely! Is there any proof this is what happened? Absolutely not! At least no proof I know of. But from the reports I've heard, it certainly sounds plausible.

And further, it seems to fit nicely with so much of the information we've already been told. Including the part about setting up some accounts in Europe.

And another thing: If this isn't true, then what pray tell is? And why haven't we been told?